Green Stuff Go Anna!

Remember when children's games did not automatically come with batteries and a screen? Well, those days have never really gone away – it's just that you have to look a little harder to find games that rely more on imagination than animation. Go Anna! is a three-in-one card game inspired by Australian wildlife. The cards are illustrated by artist and actor Caitlin McDougall and are printed on Monza (50 per cent recycled paper, 50 per cent from sustainable forests). The cards feature the Blue Mountains Gang, a group of native animal friends, in games designed by Kribo and Yodit Ackerman. Go Anna! is designed to teach children word-, animal- and colour-matching skills. Visit www.turtlegreen.com.au to find out more.
